SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1867.

The Pardoning Power of the Executive. THERE seems to be a very general misapprehension of the real meaning of the action on the part of the House of Representives when it, by a vote of 127 to 37, repealed the law giving power to the President to pardon, by proclamation, any persons engaged in the late Rebellion. We notice that this error as to the intent of the law is not limited to our Democratic journals, but has crossed the Atlantic, and the latest file of the London Times gives us an editorial of a column and a half, wherein it moralizes on our total disregard of the ancient landmarks, and the neglect of Congress to obey the Constitution. Now, actually, in the passage by the House of the repeal motion, there is nothing not entirely consistent with the fundamental doctrines of the supreme law of the land. Let us glance at the history of this pardoning power, as curtailed by the action of the Senate yesterday.

The clause which has been repealed is the 13th section of the Confiscation bill of Hon. Thomas D. Ellot, which was passed in the summer of 1862. The first Confiscation bill was moved in the Senate by Mr. Trumbull, on the 16th of August, 1861. It was not to effect the Rebellion already progressing, but was to come into force provided the malcontents continued their warfare after its passage. It was the simplest element of a Confiscation bill. It was agreed to by a vote of 83 to 6. The House approved of the bill by a vote of 60 to 48. The vote was hardly a partisan one. This bill not being sufficiently explicit, and falling without effect on the Southern people, Congress passed on the 17th of July, 1862, the regular Confiscation bill, one section of which reads :-

That the President is duly author zed, at any time hereafter, by proclamation, to extend to persons who may have participated in the existing rebellion in any State, or part thereof, par-don and amnesty, with such exceptions, and at such times and on such conditions, as he may deem expedient for the public welfare."

Now, the object of this clause is clear. It has no reference to the special pardoning power of the President. That is guaranteed by the Constitution, which was in existence nearly seventy-five years when the law was passed. If it had any such reference, it was idle, and waste paper, and would not have been adopted by the House. Section 2, Article II of the Constitution, speaking of the powers of the President, states :- "And he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment."

The power granted to the President by the act of 1862 was a new power. It gave him authority to pardon, not special cases of treason, but whole States or parts of States. It was a collective reprieve, a reprieve issued before any one of the pardoned had been convicted of any crime. It anticipated a conviction, and went far beyond the power conferred by the Constitution, which only allowed him to prevent a sentence being executed after the sentence had been passed upon the convicted criminal. The original intention of the framers of section 13 is clear. It is intended to enable the President to dismember the Confederacy by pardoning a State or section. It contemplated a strategy in war, and not an exercise of forgiveness, when the enemy had been crushed. It was like the proclamations of the knights of old, who offered to forgive all who would surrender; but no one imagined that after the battle was ought, and the foe vanquished, they could claim immunity under the offered amnesty. So it is with the section repealed. Its day has passed. The Rebels failed to avail themselves of its lenity, and now it has been repealed, as a natural result of the obstinacy of the enemy. This section, therefore, does not interfere with the provision of the Constitution. Whenever a traitor is convicted, the President can pardon him. But no more universal amnesty. The door is closed. It is fully time that the repeal be accomplished. A general amnesty proclamation was feared every day. Now, however, it is rendered impossible, and the handsome vote of 127 to 37 in the House, and 27 to 7 in the Senate, shows that no veto can tor a moment delay the operation of the law. Hereafter no traitor can be pardoned until he is proved a traitor by conviction, and the wholesale system of pardoning be thus terminated. It will, therefore, be seen that nothing in the act is inconsistent with the Constitution, as the London Times and our Democratic newspapers pretend to believe.

Who Is Responsible?

ME. REVERDY JOHNSON took occasion yesterday to say in the Senate that the imprisonment of Jeff. Davis was a reproach to American justice. Whatever might have been his offense, he was a man of delicate frame, who was selected by six or seven millions of people to take charge of this Rebellion. That he should be indicted, invoke a trial, and be still immured, was a reproach to American justice; and if it existed in any nation in Europe, it would call down the indignant rebuke of the people.

Mr. Howard, of Mishigan, thereupon opened up the true state of the case by pertinently asking Mr. Johnson whether it ture, been held under an order of the President of the United States as a prisoner of war: and if be be a mere prisoner of war, claimed as such, what power had the District Court of the district in which he may have committed the crime to bring him to trial, without the consent or order of the President of the United States handing him over to the Court to try him; and how could that Court try him unless the proper prosecuting officer of the Government were willing to undertake the task, and did undertake the task?

The fact is, Jeff. Davis is held as a prisoner solely by the power and authority of President Johnson. If the President and his friends think Jeff. Davis is a badly used man, and that his imprisonment is a "reproach to A merican justice," why don't they let him go?

Quite a Contrast.

SENATOR Howe, of Wisconsin, while the debate concerning Jeff. Davis was going on yesterday, called the attention of the Senate to a case of treason against the State of Virginia, said to have been committed by a man named John Brown, with an army of fiftytwo men. That man and his army were captured, tried, and hung. Since then treason against the United States had been committed, and Governor Henry A. Wise had taken a prominent part in it. So far from sharing the late of John Brown, Mr. Wise had not long since defied the Government of the United States, and scorned the idea of seeking or accepting a pardon.

MR. WELLS' REPORT .- Special Commissloper Wells has at last made his report. It s a pamphlet of one hundred and twentyeight pages. Its specific recommendations

First. A reduction of the tax on manufactures from five per cent, to three.

Second. The removal of all taxes upon the manufacture of bar, plate, and sheet iron, and the elements for the manufacture of steel. Third. A reduction of the tax on sugar re-

OUR STATE LEGISLATURE has done a good work in promptly passing the bill abolishing the five per cent. commission to the Receiver of Taxes of this city on unpaid taxes. The new Receiver, Richard Peltz, Esq., urged the passage of the law.

THE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE to investigate the New Orleans massacre have finished their labors in that city, and are about to return to Washington. They have taken some three thousand pages of testimony.

THE PRESIDENT has not yet returned the District of Columbia Suffrage bill, but it is expected that he will veto it.

An Impostor.-We perceive by our foreign files tkat an actor representing himselt as Mr. Joseph Booth, the youngest son of the late Junius Brutus Booth, is playing at Edinburgh, and drawing large crowds by his impudent assump-tion. Mr. Joseph Booth is not on the stage and is at present in this city, nor is any member of the family in Europe. We trust that this impostor, who is represented to be a Mr. Henry Marble, of Leavenworth, will find his just deserts. N. Y. Times.

THE AMERICAN UNION COMMISSION OF PENNSYLVANIA AND NEW JERSET one year since erected and row own two school houses in the city of Atlanta Georgia. These houses have been so divided as to give two comfortable rooms in each, capable of accommodating, in the four rooms tous obtained, four invares children. The schools are under the charge of five estimable ladies, et; with a single exception, from the state of Pennsylvania.

During the past year the Commission has had five hundred entitives under its care in Atlanta, one hundred being taught in a building rented for the purpose. This school it is proposed to abandon, and thus lighton the expense.

being taught in a building rested for the purpose. This school its propored to abandon, and thus fighten the expense.

Four hundred children can be educated an entire year for the small sum of three thousand dollars or seven dollars and fifty cents each. One thousand dollars have been subscribed by ten genteemen in Philadelpais. Two thousand dollars are yet needed. Should this amount not be contributed the present month, the buildings and their furniture will have to be sold and the pier children scattered over the city, with more to care for either body or soul. When we reflect that some of these little ones are the orphan children of men who fought and died in the Union army, and that it is the only means presented of showing our appreciation of their fathers' services, we think it ought not to be disregarded. The children have learned to love the Commussion, and to pray for those who give it their support.

Pennsy vanils and New Jersey are the only States, so far as we are informed, that have an organization for the purpose named thus evinence a disposit in to aid the South in elevating the poor white population to their rightful position. Should we succeed in prosecuting our labors another year, we can then ratire are der the confident assurance that the work will be carried forward by the city or State authorities.

The city of Athens have written us that they will as present time, and we expect similar good news from Mason.

They write us from Athens, "the school here under

They write us from Athens, 'the school here under your pairouage has done real service, and been a blessing to many, meeting a want and filting a vacuum made by levying no tax in 1855.

Atlanta is destined to be one of the most fiburishing cities of the South. There is now, and has been ever since the war closed, more enterprise in recovering from their great loss by fire, and in the establishing of trade, than in any other part of that country. The inhabitants have been quiet and orderly; no acts of violence occurring but such as are incident to all cities. I he military and civil authorities have m ved along in per ect unanimity. Shall Pennsylvania and New Jessey, by the additional gist of three thousand dollars, complete the good work they have undertaken and thus ness at alianta in rising, Phank-like, from the ashes, with increased strength and beauty?

Abrabam Lincoin held in grateral remembrance to the last hour of life the memory of the men who taught him the one only year he had the privitere of attending school. Will not the hundreds of little ones was have been clothed partially fed, and instructed mentally and morfally by the kind people of two Northeru States, rise up and call them blessed?

The Commission must decide the question soon as to the continuance of the work.

Let all remember that Seven dollars and fifty ceur's will educate a child for an entire year. It is hoped a large number of persons will be found re dy to undertake to keep at least one child in these schools.

PROSPECTUS OF THE "CAMDEN CHURCH APPEAL."—The ladles of Camden having resolved to hold a Fair at Christmas, for the benefit of the new Church of the Immacuiate Conception, we have, at the suggestion of the Rev. F. Byrne, undertaken to publish, during the week of the Fair, a daily literary sheet of the above tit e.

Having secured the assistance of several talented writers we have no doub our paper will be one of the rich and rare things of the Christmas Holidays. We considerally anticipate a wide—a very wide—circulation. For this, we do not rely entirely on the merits of our sheet—though we trust it will be found worth anybody's doliar—but rather on the charity and generosity of the people of Camden and elsewhere who have, herefolfore, so cheerfully assisted in the erection of the church much has been done already. We are not unmindful of it, nor is it torgotten by Him in Whose name a cup of cold water shall not be given in vain. What is contributed towards His Church is treasured up for the donors where the rust and the moth doth not consume, and it will be multiplied to them an hundred foul. To those, then, to the generous and kind-nearted everywhere, to such as love God and love the giory of His house—to all who have taith in the Life to Come, we contidently address our Hitle "appeal" Make it welcome, kind readers; make it welcome for the cause which tadvocates
